Tanger Med is a Moroccan deep water port built between 2004 and July 2007. It is bordered by a free zone of industrial and logistics activities in the region Tanger-Tétouan in northern Morocco.

Thanks to a strategic position at the pathway of world maritime trade between East and West Asia, Europe and North America, Tanger Med Port became one of the most important logistics platforms, while promoting the just-in-time production.

It focuses its activities on the development and management of infrastructure, coordination and facilitation of the port industry and ensures the reliability and the performance of services provided to customers of the port platform.

The Tanger Med Port is connected to more than 120 ports in 50 countries in the world. In 2016, the Port will be able to handle three millions containers and thus become the largest port in Africa at the transshipment.
