In 1941, the construction of the Port of Luanda became for everyone a necessity imposed by the industrial and economic development of Angola.

The Port of Luanda aims at creating added value for its customers and the entire Port Industry, providing the best possible conditions for businesses and improving the quality of maritime & intermodal services, in order to support the economic and social development of the region and the influence of the Port of Luanda.

A total of 482,365 containers are handled a year in Luanda. The variation of this movement was over 28% compared to last year, which represents an increase of 106.064 containers.

The Port of Luanda will be within 10 years a reference among all African Ports, through the success of some containers' privatization.
